

Fraud and Consequences

What You Should Know

It is an offence to provide information you know is false or misleading.

What Can Happen To You

A person who knowingly provides false or misleading information may:

- » receive a criminal record
- » be subject to court-imposed consequences
- » have their assistance reduced
- » be required to repay assistance

For More Information

- » Refer to the “Fraud and Consequences” brochure
- » Visit our website at: www.gov.bc.ca

Ministry of Social Development and Social Innovation