Hiring Documentation

Importance of Hiring Documentation

Documentation justifies employment actions, such as recruitment and selection. Effective documentation enables you to:

- Detail and record your steps, decisions and results of your staffing action.
- Provide evidence that your staffing action was based on the principle of merit and that the steps taken were consistent, reasonable and justifiable.
- Provide the necessary information to respond to inquiries from unsuccessful applicants during feedback, for an internal inquiry or staffing review.
- Creates an opportunity for you to review what worked and identify areas for improvement for future actions.
- Document the entire process in one secure place and ensure utmost confidentiality of all aspects of the staffing action.

Record of Decision for Hire

An appropriate record of the basis of the decision must be maintained by the hiring manager. It includes all the information required to 'tell the story':

- The posting and job profile
- A record of who applied, applicant resumes and any documents submitted by applicants
- Screening documents and the basis of screening decisions
- The assessment approach used, including tools, scoring and rating guides, applicant responses, applicant ratings, completed past work performance checks and any relevant documentation that is the basis for decisions made
- The record of offer, acceptance, notification of unsuccessful applicants and confirmation of the appointment(s)

The hiring manager is responsible to document the entire hiring process and retain the documentation in their competition file.

Record Storage and Retention

Hiring Managers are responsible to retain original copies of the competition file for a period of no less than two years. If your organizational unit has permission to file documents digitally, original hiring documentation may be filed and retained in a digital format, provided that the document is an effective record - i.e. entirely readable for audit and/or review purposes. Contact your designated ministry records officer for further information regarding the permission process and related quality control requirements to file electronically.

Transitory records generated during the course of the staffing process are not required for documentation. For examples, drafts and working copies of materials used to prepare the ongoing record of the competition process. Only finalized materials are considered part of the required file.

Staffing Reviews and Audits

A complete competition file will be submitted by the hiring manager to the BC Public Service Agency if the competition is subject to a request for a deputy minister inquiry into a staffing action, staffing review, or is selected by the Office of the Merit Commissioner for audit. The BC Public Service Agency will contact you to arrange for receipt of an electronic copy of the file.
