General Description:

This tobacco-use prevention resource addresses both tobacco prevention and cessation issues within the school community. Each similar resource for Grades 8 to 12 consists of classroom lessons with all the necessary support material included, plus additional activities and projects and a "Tobacco Backpack" of factual background material about tobacco prevention and cessation. The activities and projects can be used for special days such as National Non-Smoking Week or for longer term school projects. Each resource also includes community connections, generic teaching strategies and lists of contacts and resources. For Grade 8, three classroom lessons help students explore the social factors that influence their attitudes towards tobacco use as well as deceptive media advertising techniques. They also provide opportunities for students to develop their decision making and refusal skills. The lessons include supporting background information, overheads and blackline masters. Lesson delivery options are provided, including an option to use only the "Engaging the Learner" section if time is limited. Suggestions for cross-curricular integration, assessment and home-community involvement are also included. This resource is available free of charge to schools from Prevention Source B.C. Similar teacher resources for Grades K to 7 have been distributed to schools and are also available from Prevention Source B.C. Additional support for teachers includes two videos, one for Grades 4 to 7 and one for Grades 8 to 12, that provide an orientation to using the resources. Please contact Prevention Source B.C. Also, orientation workshops may be arranged by contacting the Regional Tobacco Reduction Coordinator via the local health unit.

The Be Real Game

General Description:

Cooperative, interactive career exploration program has students create a simulated "town." They are allocated life/work roles and discover how experiences and issues are influenced by their roles and by major economic forces. The facilitator's guide provides detailed information for the sessions, accompanied by materials for 40 students. A minimum of 25 hours is required to complete the core activities. It is recommended that teachers be familiar with the intent and content of this program before delivery. A special offer is currently available, temporarily reducing the cost per kit to $70.00. This special offer includes a Facilitator's Kit and an Awareness Kit (40 Student Kits and 40 information brochures).

Career Connections Series I and Series II

General Description:

Two collections, comprising a total of twelve books, are designed to help students evaluate their skills, interests and experiences in terms of investigating career choices. Each book surveys ten different occupations related to each of the following: human body, outdoors, environment, living things, math and computers, how things work, working with your hands, performing arts, sport fitness, working with people, entrepreneurs, film, video and photography. Career information is arranged in an interview-style personal profile of a person employed in an occupation. Each career includes planning activities to encourage exploration. These collections provide exposure to a wide range of career choices, particularly for students with a limited frame of reference. An accompanying teacher's resource book for each collection includes background information, reproducible career investigations and curriculum-based activities. In addition, a "Personal Explorations" module is included. This provides a ten-hour delivery format for career education at the transition years level.

Career/Life Journeys 8

General Description:

This resource is the Grade 8 level of a collection of resources developed by School District #23 to assist teachers in delivering CAPP 8 to 12. It integrates and replaces the resource 10,000 Hats. Seventeen lesson plans are organized in five units: Planning, Career Development, Enterprise, Planning in Action and Personal Development. The focus is on information gathering, self-awareness and appreciation of diversity. Some lessons require additional supporting resources, e.g., Choices program. Assessments tools included. Teachers should note that some sections are dated (e.g. survival skills for the 90s) and the Appendix of Recommended Ministry Resources. Some of the blackline masters are of poor quality for reproduction.

CHOICES for Positive Youth Relationships

General Description:

This resource, consisting of a 20-minute documentary video called A Love That Kills and an instructional guide, is designed to address peer relationships among youth and to build awareness and understanding of the warning signs of abusive or violent interpersonal relationships. The video documents a true-life abusive relationship that ended violently. The comprehensive guide provides six lesson plans that support the video and deal with healthy relationship choices. Topics covered include identifying healthy/unhealthy relationships, warning signs, understanding behaviour choices and effective support strategies. The guide includes background information for teachers including curriculum links, teaching strategies, addressing diversity and tips if a student discloses. Lesson plans follow a consistent format and include all of the necessary materials. Additional information includes alternative and extension ideas, assessment tools and a generic list of community support resources. This resource is also recommended for Family Studies 11 and 12.

Caution:

Teachers should preview the video before using as it may trigger an emotional response in some viewers. Teachers must be prepared to deal with disclosures. Please refer to The B.C. Handbook for Action on Child Abuse and Neglect.

Destination 2020

General Description:

This resource consists of a teacher's guide and a set of occupation profiles. It is designed to help students recognize the many skills they are acquiring now and how these skills will be useful in their future careers. The teacher's guide provides the scope of the five sections of the program, a set of activities for each section, copies of the student handouts and some large posters. The sections deal with skills and interests, personalities, occupations and looking to the future. The occupation profiles are grouped according to three categories of interest (people, information, things) and colour-coded by favorite subject areas. A web site is available that provides an on-line version of the activity handouts and profiles. Teachers will need to develop their own assessment strategies.

This resource is also recommended for Grade 7.

Expanding Your Horizons: Career Development Guide, Second Edition

Author(s): Misener, Judi; Butler, Susan

General Description:

This comprehensive resource comprises a softcover student book and teacher's resource guide. The activity-based student text includes topics such as planning your career skills, quality of work life and exploring the workplace. A variety of activities include journal writing, questions, portfolio development, web search suggestions and case studies. The teacher's resource parallels the student text as well as providing student worksheets, lessons plans, blackline masters and evaluation procedures. Examples include group activities, checklists, self-evaluation forms, teacher observation of role play forms, peer evaluation of presentation forms and speaker evaluation forms. Every chapter has teacher suggestions and reference resources listed. Grade 10, 11 and 12 teachers should discuss which sections of the text they are using to avoid redundancy in CAPP 11 and 12.

Caution:

Chapter 9 on labour legislation needs supplementing with provincial employment standards material.

Focus on Harassment and Intimidation
Responding to Bullying in Secondary School Communities

General Description:

This resource includes theoretical background, process models and tools required for making positive change in secondary school communities. Eight chapters provide: an overview and rationale; discussion of terms; key concepts and research; a four-part model for taking action, including policies, procedures and instruction; promising practices and supporting resources. Suggested effective instructional strategies provide the context for nine sample grade specific lessons that support CAPP, English Language Arts, Drama, Visual Arts and Social Studies classes. Two copies have been distributed to each secondary school. Additional copies are available for purchase from Office Products Centre.

In Other Words

General Description:

Twenty-seven-minute video with accompanying viewing guide deals with the impact of homophobic language. A group of ethnically diverse Canadian teens provide frank and moving testimonials about being gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgendered. Slang terms are sensitively clarified, including their changing usages. Explanations of gender identity and transgender are also provided. A "two-spirited" youth presents information from a First Nations perspective. The viewing guide provides background information on appropriate language, guidelines for discussing homophobic name-calling in schools, and suggested follow-up activities. Although this video closely supports learning outcomes in several CAPP curriculum organizers for Grade 10, teachers may find it valuable to use this video in other grades to support discussions dealing with homophobia, bullying and creating safer schools.

It's a Big Menu... Choose What You Like

General Description:

Resource kit, consisting of a teacher's resource guide and a 50-minute student produced video, addresses a range of post-secondary options for students. In particular, it focuses upon BC's projected skills shortage. In both the guide and the video, the main themes of the program are organized as five units: "Finding Your Passion," "Optimism," "Opportunities," "Options - How to Get There" and 'Honour All Work.'" The teacher's guide includes lesson plans with blackline masters, teacher references, and key Internet sites. The video uses humour relevant to youth; however, some of the references may date quickly (e.g., Survivor).

This resource has been distributed free to every regular school in BC that registers Grade 10 students. Additional copies of the kit are available for purchase from Malaspina University-College.

Author(s): Campbell, J.

General Description:

Canadian collection consists of four student magazines and teacher guides: Relationships, Healthy and Well, Careers and Venturing Out. Each student magazine is a compilation of articles from other sources, ranging from "Teen" magazine to Statistics Canada and include many "real life" stories as well as practical information and tips for teenagers. The table of contents clusters the articles according to themes matching the organization of the teacher guides. The accompanying teacher guides provide background information and related teaching and learning activities. This resource is most suitable for classes of short time duration or minimum exposure hours.

Caution:

Some of the articles deal with sensitive subject matter, particularly RELATIONSHIPS and HEALTHY AND WELL. In addition, some articles provide superficial coverage of the topic, and several topics in these two magazines may have more appeal for female students. Teachers will need to preview carefully and be selective in their use of articles, topics, and activities.

General Description:

Opening Doors is designed to help students find information on over 1900 post-secondary programs offered in BC. It lets students search for programs by subject, field of study, institution or length of the program. It allows students to compare programs by admission requirements, tuition fees, start dates and costs. The Opening Doors website also includes information on student finances, on-campus student services and a reference section detailing former students' experiences and their transitions to either the workplace or further education. A teacher's guide that includes lesson plans and education bulletins is part of the website. Opening Doors is available on the web at: www.openingdoorsbc.com

The Center for Education Information developed Opening Doors for the Ministry of Advanced Education.
