Project Overview:

The Middle Creek project is located approximately 20 km west of Terrace and has a power capacity of 20 MW. The cluster consists of two creeks, Dasque Creek and Middle Creek. The site was selected because of the high precipitation regime, and the hydrology has been characterized using a combination of site-collected data and a 42 year continuous flow record from two proximal Water Survey of Canada stream gauges. The hydrology is very good for hydroelectric generation, with pluvial (rainfall), nival (snowmelt) and glacial runoff combining to generate a sustained annual hydrograph. Year-to-year flow variations are generally not substantial.

Environmental field investigations for the Dasque Cluster have confirmed that these creeks are appropriate sites for green power generation. Fish barriers have been identified, mapped, and incorporated into the engineering design, and the projects are not expected to disrupt any valuable salmon habitat. The watersheds have already been impacted by logging, and have existing road access, including access to the intake locations and penstock route alignments.

The proposed point of interconnection is the Skeena Substation, located 19 km to the east along a gently undulating route alignment adjacent to existing roads and a high voltage BCTC transmission line. An existing 69 KV feeder at the substation allows for a very straightforward interconnection.
