If you have a family or civil legal issue, visit your local Justice Access Centre in Abbotsford, Nanaimo, Surrey, Vancouver or Victoria. We offer a range of information and services designed to help people with the kinds of legal problems that affect everyday life. Our goal is to help you find an early and affordable solution.

We offer services from the wider justice community — all in one location. We'll assess your situation and help you determine your needs. With our network of support services, including legal services, we know how to connect you with the right kind of help, whether it's at the centre or in the community.

At the Justice Access Centre we can provide assistance with family justice matters, including:

- Separation and divorce
- Guardianship, parenting arrangements or contact with a child when there is a separation or divorce
- Child and spousal support
- Parenting after separation issues
- Family Law Act protection orders for prevention of family violence

We can also provide help with referrals, resources and information for limited Supreme Court of British Columbia civil law processes. Services include assistance with:

- Simple probate
- Requesting a review of decisions of the Residential Tenancy Branch and various tribunals
- Appeals to the Supreme Court
- General Supreme Court information

Justice Access Centres do not provide assistance with criminal issues, small claims court forms and filings, and some other specific legal solutions.

Please call or drop-in to the nearest Justice Access Centre to learn more.

Justice Access Centres offer:

- Self-help and information services
- Needs assessment
- Dispute resolution and mediation services
- Limited legal advice (provided by partners on/off site)
- Referrals to community services
- Free publications

If you need legal advice or if you are interested in meeting with a lawyer, we will let you know what services are available. If you need to go to court, we may be able to help you prepare.

The centres are wheelchair accessible. In some situations, an interpreter can be arranged. For some services, you must be financially eligible.
