

Vital Statistics Information Box

PREMATURE (<75 YEARS) EXTERNAL CAUSES OF DEATH IN BRITISH COLUMBIA, 2001 - 2010

From 2001 to 2010, deaths among those under the age of 75 have accounted for just 37.8 percent of all deaths; however, 77.4 percent of deaths from external causes were in this age group. The share of premature deaths attributable to external causes has fallen from 13.7 percent in 2001 to 12.3 percent in 2010. Unintentional injuries account for the vast majority (61.7 percent in 2010) of deaths from external causes among those under the age of 75.

Share of Premature Mortality Attributable to External Causes, British Columbia, 2001 to 2010

Deaths Under the Age of 75 Years due to Unintentional Injuries, Homicide and Suicide, British Columbia 2001 to 2010

