2019-2020 VEGETABLE REVIEW CONSULTATION SUBMISSION THANK YOU

The review panel thanks you for the feedback you provided in your letter dated April 29, 2020 regarding the proposed 2019-2020 Vegetable Supervisory Review (Review) topics.

Your response helped the panel determine that that the Review will focus on the BC Vegetable Marketing Commission structure, agency accountability, and delivery allocation. Your continued input on these topics is essential for successful review outcomes.

I encourage you or your clients to complete this short Survey Monkey poll that will tell us how you would like to be consulted during the Review:

<https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/9GCC7W8>

A supervisory review is not an adversarial process that gives rise to the same procedural fairness requirements of an appeal. It is for the panel to determine how it will exercise its supervisory authority and use consultation with stakeholders to best meet the SAFETI¹ principles in the interest of sound marketing policy.

In your letter you asked for:

1. Opportunity to provide written submissions and to make individual presentations to the supervisory panel.

Mastrondari will have opportunities to provide input to the supervisory panel on matters of interest as part of the Review.

2. Detailed minutes or summary of meetings amongst the panel, the Commission, other participants and witnesses during the supervisory review process.

As per the BC Farm Industry Review Board's (BCFIRB) general practice with its supervisory reviews, it is providing meeting summaries, via posting them to its Review web page on an on-going basis. A May meeting summary will be posted shortly.

3. Opportunity to respond to information provided to the panel by the Commission, other participants, and any witnesses during the Review.

Mastronardi will have opportunities to review any submissions posted to the website. Some industry member input may be provided to the panel by teleconference or video conference. In the case of oral submissions, the panel will determine how to report out on them. The panel will determine the timing of inputs and comments as the Review progresses.

Thank you again and the panel looks forward to receiving your or your client's response to the survey.

Yours,
