WITS Foundation

Program Delivery in Schools

WITS (Walk away, Ignore, Talk it out, Seek help) is a literacy-based bully prevention/problem-solving program that runs year round in elementary schools. Children are taught to 'use their WITS' when confronted with peer aggression. Similar to 'stop, drop and roll' for when you are on fire, the easy-to-remember WITS strategies come to mind quickly when a child is panicked. The more advanced WITS LEADS Program teaches older children a more complex problem solving strategy that helps them become leaders on the playground. It should be noted, in 2016, researchers from Dalhousie University analyzed the effectiveness of seven bullying prevention programs from across Canada and only WITS programs was worthy of being recommended due to its long-term benefits and promotion of healthy relationships.
