Instructions for applying for a Driver Improvement Program Review:

The review process is available only to prohibitions issued by the Superintendent of Motor Vehicles under section 93 of the Motor Vehicle Act.
Clients seeking a review must send a written submission along with the completed Application for Review form and pay a non-refundable fee of $100 for each application.
The $100 Review fee can be paid in person at a Driver Licensing Office. To find an office near you, visit icbc.com or look in the phone book under ICBC.
The $100 Review fee can also be paid by certified cheque or money order, payable to the Minister of Finance.
Your written submission must:
- Provide reasons why the prohibition should not be imposed or should be for a shorter term
- Include any relevant supporting documentation
One submission is permitted for each application.
Drivers who have received a final Notice of Prohibition or who have signed and dated a Notice of Intent to Prohibit are not eligible to drive.
