

Next steps after reinstating your licence after a 90-day prohibition

Your 90-day prohibition is the first step in the remedial requirements set out by the Motor Vehicle Act of British Columbia. So, what are the next required steps?

Step 1: Watch for your RDP referral letter from RoadSafetyBC

RoadSafetyBC is currently experiencing a processing backlog and Responsible Driving Program (RDP) referral letters may take longer than usual to arrive. You cannot register until you have received your “Notice to Refer to Remedial Programs” letter in the mail.

Keep your address up to date with ICBC. If you move before getting your RDP referral letter, you must update your address within 10 days.

The RDP is a legislated course required for every BC driver whose 90-day driving prohibition involved alcohol or drugs. It cannot be appealed, and your referral is not eligible for a review. Participation in the full RDP is mandatory. The program fee is $1,200, due at registration. Learn more at www.responsibledriverprogram.ca.

Step 2: Register with CAMH within 45 Days

Once you get your referral letter, you have 45 days to register for the RDP through the Centre for Addiction and Mental Health (CAMH), which runs the program on behalf of RoadSafetyBC. If you do not register within 45 days, your driver’s licence will be cancelled without further notice.

Your referral package will include instructions on how to register and information about payment assistance options for eligible registrants.

Important deadlines:

- The program must be completed within one year of the date on your referral letter.
- The program includes a mandatory six-month follow-up review after your final workshop. You are not considered finished until this follow-up is completed. It cannot be waived, moved, or rescheduled earlier.
- If your licence is cancelled for failing to complete within the one-year period, it will remain cancelled until the program is fully completed.

Step 3: Complete the program

After you register, CAMH will contact you to schedule a screening call and set up your workshop schedule. After you register with CAMH, they will tell you what to do next and how to book the course. You are responsible for contacting CAMH and scheduling.
