

CN Rail

- The project team has collaborated extensively with CN Rail throughout the design phase of the project, and CN Rail is in agreement with the current design.
- The new highway design requires no realignment of the railway track, improving the constructability of the project.
- The new highway overpass, and realignment above CN Rail, separates Highway 16 from the railway for the length of the project, improving safety by reducing risks of rail and road traffic conflicts.
- Working above the active railway will require careful coordination and will limit work windows and blasting operations
