Now updated with more features and full mobile support, the BC Economic Atlas is a user-friendly web based mapping application that draws from an extensive library of economic and natural resource data sources to conveniently create custom maps. Users can layer data from a variety of sources (including user-imported data) and use mark-up tools to produce customized maps and reports of relevant economic and natural resource information for informational, investment or decision-making purposes.

Hear from our economic development expert on how to use and effectively leverage the newly added features of this free tool - including live-demonstrations and walk-throughs. Check out the tool prior to the webinar at:
