About this List of Funding Opportunities

This document is intended to help British Columbian local governments, First Nations, and community organizations find appropriate funding to support energy planning, energy efficiency, and clean energy projects. This list provides summary information about each program/funding opportunity, including the program title, description, details on eligibility, funding available, funding organization, contact information, and website address.

Funding opportunities are organized alphabetically by program name and have been categorized according to the focus of each program: general funding; regionally specific funding; funding for First Nations; funding for Local Governments; upcoming funding; and non-funding programs. A cross-reference table allows for quick identification of program eligibility based on project and community characteristics.

The information is up-to-date as of March 14, 2019, and will be updated periodically as funding details change.

Disclaimer

Every effort is made to provide accurate information. However, information provided in this document may deviate from actual program information over time. Therefore, it is recommended that readers contact each program as required to confirm the details herein.

For Your Information:

Did You Know Your Energy Project Could Be a Public Utility?

In BC, public utilities are regulated by BC Utilities Commission (BCUC) under the Utilities Commission Act.

A public utility, as defined by the Utilities Commission Act, consists of any person or entity that owns or operates assets for the production, transmission, delivery or sale of electricity, steam, thermal energy or gas to the public for compensation. This includes thermal and district energy systems, electrical and gas distribution lines, pipelines, electrical transmission and more.

Who is excluded as a public utility?

- Municipalities or regional districts operating or providing services within their own boundaries;
- producers who do not resell the service or commodity beyond themselves, their employees or tenants;
- entities within the petroleum industry or in the wellhead production of oil, natural gas or other natural petroleum substances; and
- entities engaged in geothermal production.

Steps to a Winning Grant Application

Preparing an Application

1. Review the Funding Guide to determine if programs are available to support your project.
2. Ensure a good fit. Check your project's goals and objectives against those of the funding program. Review evaluation criteria and ensure that your proposal responds directly to each or as many as possible.
3. Contact funding agency. Describe your project and ask:
  - Does this project meet the funding program's goals and objectives?
  - What are key elements of past successful applications?
  - What are evaluation criteria (if not listed on form)?
  - Can supporting material (such as letters of support) be submitted after the closing date?
  - Are previous applications available for review?
  - Is Council or Board endorsement of the application required?
4. Create a timeline for application preparation and an application package checklist, including:
  - Obtaining executive committee, Council or Board endorsement, if required
  - Identifying and/or obtaining supporting funding
  - Identifying possible partners and reaching agreements
  - Writing the proposal and ensuring senior management review and final edits
  - Securing letters of support
  - Developing a budget
  - Copying and filing
  - Submission deadline, format, and method of delivery (postmarked document, email, etc.)
5. Review application package checklist and ensure that all requirements have been met.
6. Submit the proposal on time in the required format.

Application Content

1. Follow the recommended format of the proposal.
2. Focus on key elements and ensure that you clearly address evaluation criteria. Include everything you think is important, but be succinct – longer is not better.

3. List resources your agency has committed or will commit, to ensure the success of the project.
4. Identify partners and note how you will work with them to ensure success.
5. Describe any planned community engagement processes, if required. Consider using innovative approaches.
6. Facts and figures are helpful. If possible, calculate or estimate the magnitude of benefits of the project.
7. A budget can be either calculated or estimated, but it should not necessarily reflect the maximum amount of funding available unless you can justify it. Provide a reasonable level of detail for costs, itemize matching funds, and mention in-kind contributions, if any.
