Protect your people who work alone and comply with Canadian safety legislation with one simple solution.

Are your workers safe?

If you have employees who work alone, in isolation, or in high risk situations, you need a work alone monitoring solution that can not only check the status of your workers, but also alert the appropriate people in case of an emergency. SafetyLine is an automated system available 24/7, and with features such as missed check-in alarms and Man Down Detection, workers can get help even when they can't call for help themselves.

Are you legislation compliant?

Most provinces in Canada have legislation in place regarding employees who work alone or in isolation. Companies, and even individuals within an organization, can face criminal charges or fines if legislation is not met. With features like data logging and reports on demand, SafetyLine can help protect your company from legal risks.

Can you face future risks?

With evolving enterprises, it can be difficult to predict changes that might effect the safety and security of your workforce. SafetyLine is a flexible and scalable solution that is ready to protect your employees, regardless of your organization structure.
