1. BACKGROUND AND METHODOLOGIES

This report presents a summary of evaluation feedback received from participants in Parenting After Separation (PAS) sessions which took place in 18 communities in B.C. between April 1, 2001 and March 31, 2002.

PAS, a program of the Ministry of Attorney General, consists of a three-hour information session for parents to help them and their families adjust to separation. In some centres parents are mandated to attend PAS and in others they may attend voluntarily.

Following the PAS session, participants are given the evaluation form shown in Appendix 1 of this report. There are slight variations in the content of the form from site to site, primarily in the extent of demographic information requested and in the follow up to certain questions.

There were 2417 evaluation forms received by the Ministry from the 18 communities. A random sample of 636 forms stratified by community was drawn from this population and entered into a database. This sample size reflects the response rate of the overall population of PAS participants in the year April 1, 2002 to March 31, 2002, at a level of confidence of 98% with a confidence interval of 4%. The strength and consistency of client opinions about learning outcomes reported in Section 4 adds credence to the findings.

Findings are reported in the four sections which follow: participant and session background, session scheduling, learning outcomes for participants, and participant recommendations for PAS.

All qualitative responses were analyzed and grouped in categories for tabular presentation. The raw data were originally analyzed both by gender and by whether the program was mandatory or voluntary. No significant differences on these variables were found for any of the responses although some patterns are noted in the commentaries that follow.

A second set of data pertaining to PAS offered in Cantonese or Mandarin in Vancouver, Richmond and Burnaby was received by the Ministry in aggregated reports for each of 13 sessions, rather than as evaluation forms completed by individual participants. These 13 sessions involved 107 participants, 72 female (67%) and 35 males (33%). The reports for these sessions did not count actual responses but, instead, gave general indications of overall responses. For the most part these general responses appear to reflect similar patterns to those reported in the following sections. However, where an additional or different pattern of responses was evident, this is noted in the summary for that section.

2. PARTICIPANT AND SESSION BACKGROUND

2.1 Type and Location

The PAS programs took place in 18 different communities around B.C. which are listed in Table 1. As indicated in the table, there were two types of programs, nine where participation is voluntary and eight where participants are mandated to attend. As shown in Table 2 the vast majority of the sample attended mandatory programs, since the communities that required attendance tended to be larger in size.

2.2 Participant Background

Selected demographic variables of participants are presented in Tables 3 through 6. Observations concerning these tables and/or supplementary data include the following:

- Unlike other locations, the evaluation forms used at the Victoria PAS location contained little or no demographic information. This accounts for the high number of no responses.
- Table 4 shows that there was a wide spread in the length of time that participants had been separated. At times this difference of experience may have created difficulties for the PAS presenter in providing a useful and consistent focus for all participants. This problem is reflected in the comments of participants in Table 11.
- 98% (544/556) of the participants who provided demographic information stated that English was the language they usually speak (NR=80). (The number of participants in the Chinese PAS session is noted in Section 1.)
- 72% (371/513) of respondents had already taken legal action prior to PAS, while 28% (142/513) had not (NR=123).

A small minority of the feedback forms had a space for elaboration on the type of legal action taken; however, the small number of responses and their lack of clarity made it impossible to draw any information from them.

Note: Relationship with child was not recorded in 80 cases.

3. SESSION SCHEDULING

Of 627 respondents who commented on the scheduling of PAS sessions (NR=9), 84% (529) stated that the days and time were convenient to them, and 14% (87) said they were not convenient. (A further 2%, or 11, respondents were not sure.)

Unfortunately, the feedback questionnaire did not ask what day or time the session was held, so it is difficult to interpret these results. However, Table 7 shows the preferred times of some respondents who indicated the session was inconvenient. The majority of those who preferred weekdays preferred an evening session, while those desiring a weekend schedule preferred a morning or afternoon session.

TABLE 7: DESIRED SCHEDULING CHANGES

Time Desired	Frequency	Percentage

Total	72	101%

Note: Percentages do not total 100% due to rounding.

4. LEARNING OUTCOMES FOR PARTICIPANTS

As shown in Table 8, a strong majority of participants indicated that the PAS session had helped them achieve new knowledge and understanding. The main areas of perceived learning, ranging from 85 – 90%, occurred in relation to greater understanding of and communicating with the participants' children. The statements on the left of the table were statements to which respondents were asked to respond.

TABLE 8: LEARNING OUTCOMES OF PARTICIPANTS

I would be willing to consider mediation or conciliation as an alternative to going to court in resolving conflicts over children.	445 73%	105 17%	62 10%	612 100%	24

Note: Percentages do not necessarily total 100% due to rounding.

Table 9 presents category data based on an analysis of qualitative responses of participants to the statement "Overall, the two most important things I learned from this session were . . ." As in Table 8, the strongest response related to learnings about children.

TABLE 9: TYPES OF THINGS LEARNED

Types of Things Learned	Frequency	Percentage*
Focus on Child
Putting the child first/Focus of parenting as top priority.	170	35%
Empathy and understanding of children's experience/communicating with child.	230	45%

Nothing/session perceived as not applicable to participant.	11	2%
Comment by participant was not usable.	12	2%

Note: There were 508 respondents to this question. Percentages are calculated by dividing the number of participants who gave each response by 508. Since some respondents gave two answers the total percentages exceed 100%.

* Percentage of all respondents who gave this response (N=508).

5. PARTICIPANT ASSESSMENTS AND RECOMMENDATIONS FOR PAS

Participants were asked to assess the qualities of the presenters for the session, to indicate topics they would have liked more information about, to identify topics which weren't covered that they would like information on and, in general, to state how the session could have been better. These questions were all open-ended; the categories presented in Tables 10 – 12 are based on qualitative analysis of the responses.

The participants were extremely positive about the presenters of the PAS program:

- 98% (598/611) thought that the presenters knew their subject matter well (1 disagreed; 12 DK; NR=25).
- 97% (607/623) of respondents stated that the presenters were well organized. (3 disagreed; 13 DK; NR=13)
Reports from the Cantonese and Mandarin programs consistently praised the organization and expertise of the presenters.

Reflecting the learnings in Tables 8 and 9, Table 10 shows that one of the main topics on which supplementary information was desired pertained to children's issues. There was also significant interest in more information on legal issues and court options. It should be noted that feedback on this issue was limited, including only 125 respondents.

TABLE 10: SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION DESIRED BY PARTICIPANTS

Type of Information Desired	Frequency	Percentage
Court and Legal Issues
Child Support Issues	7	6%
Legal issues, options and proceedings	40	32%
Dealing with Former Spouse
If former spouse is abusive/volatile/mentally ill.	9	7%
Anger management.	2	2%
If spouse uncooperative or uncommunicative/not acting in best interest of child/not wanting to be involved.	19	13%
Ending relationship/moving on.	2	2%
Programs and Services
Mediation and alternatives to going to court.	5	4%
Community and counselling support available.	6	5%
Children's Issues
Child(ren)'s feelings and emotional needs.	26	21%
General parenting issues.	5	4%
Personal Issues
Emotional needs of self/self-care.	1	1%
New relationships/how to introduce new spouse.	3	2%
Total	125	99%

Note: Percentages do not total 100% due to rounding.

When asked if an additional topic should be added to the PAS session, 21% (129/612) of the respondents (NR=24) said “yes”, while the remaining 79% said additional topics were not needed. Eighty-one respondents suggested additional topics, as shown in Table 11. The majority of these suggestions were to address specific circumstances, such as a particularly violent ex-spouse or the impacts of separation in different age groups of children. Others wanted specific information related to court proceedings.

TABLE 11: ADDITIONAL TOPICS DESIRED BY PARTICIPANTS

Additional Topics Desired	Frequency	Percentage*
Dealing with Ex-Spouse
“Non-textbook” ex-spouse who is abusive/mentally ill/where mediation isn’t an option.	18	15%
Parents who do not want to see their child.	9	7%
When other parent denies access.	4	3%
Power imbalances in dealing with spouse.	10	8%
Specific Circumstances
Grandparent/other family member issues.	11	9%
Effects of separation on specific age groups; teenagers vs. infants.	14	11%
New relationships/role of new parent.	5	4%
Legal or Court Information
Step-by-step practical information for working through court system.	16	13%
Rights of child/parents.	7	6%
Other specific legal issues.	8	6%
Biases and problems in court system.	5	4%
Financial information.	3	2%
Support service referrals.	7	6%
General Comments
Miscellaneous specific suggestions.	4	3%
Unusable comments.	3	2%
Total	81	99%

Note: Percentages do not total 100% due to rounding.

Approximately a third of participants made suggestions on how the PAS session could be improved, as shown in Table 12. There was no single, dominant response to this question, and almost a quarter of them were vague but non-specific complimentary comments about the program. Of useable comments, the strongest individual expressions of interest were for longer or multiple sessions (18%, 35/196) or for a program which more fully addressed individual circumstances (13%, 25/196). In addition to these comments, one theme was consistently identified in the summaries of responses from the Cantonese and Mandarin PAS sessions. In almost every program the participants desired some form of support services, for example, childcare during the session, or an ongoing support group following the session.

TABLE 12: WHAT WOULD MAKE THE SESSION BETTER

The Program Would Have Been Better If:	Frequency	Percentage
Program Content
Program more applicable to individual circumstances; e.g. non-parent family member, parents divorced for long length of time.	25	13%
Videos were updated.	9	5%
Age specific advice; infants/teenagers.	3	2%
Less focus on mediation.	5	3%
Length
Program was longer/multiple sessions, more overall information.	35	18%
Program was less repetitive or shorter.	11	8%
Format and Organization
Discussion was more personal/smaller group with more time for talking about specific issues/be able to prepare questions beforehand.	21	11%
Specific organizational issue; a presenter did not show up/one presenter doing more talking.	6	3%
The program was not mandatory.	4	2%
Scheduling and Physical Arrangements
Different time/place.	6	3%
Increased physical comfort/food provided.	9	5%
Childcare available.	2	1%
Personal Circumstances
If program had been available earlier in divorce process.	4	2%
If ex-spouse was mandated to take program.	4	2%
