* The Ministry of Attorney General and the BC Prosecution Service is particularly interested in receiving applications from Indigenous law students who are First Nations, Métis or Inuit. Indigenous law students are invited to apply for the Indigenous-specific position as well as the open stream articling positions. Each year, the Legal Services Branch and the B.C. Prosecution Service each dedicate at least one articling position to an Indigenous law student.

 B.C. Prosecution Service: Offers to successful applicants, including choice of locations, will be made in the order that applicants have ranked on the oral interview. Students should be prepared to live in or near the community where they have accepted an articling position for the articling term. There will not necessarily be positions offered in every location listed above.

THIS COMPLETES THE APPLICATION FORM.
