Complete this form only the first year that you apply. Complete Part A and B first, then have the health professional for the person with the disabilities initial Part B and complete Part C.

Health Professional – The health professional for the person with the disabilities identified in Part A must initial Part B, complete Part C and return the form to the person with the disabilities.

- A health professional is:
- a medical practitioner,
 - a nurse practitioner,
 - a registered psychologist who is authorized by the College of Psychologists of BC to practise psychology, or
 - an occupational therapist authorized by the College of Occupational Therapists of BC to practise occupational therapy.

A person with disabilities is someone who has a severe mental or physical impairment that, in the opinion of a health professional, is likely to continue for at least 2 years. This impairment directly and significantly restricts the person’s ability to perform one or more daily living activities either continuously or periodically for extended periods. In order to perform daily living activities, the person requires significant help or supervision of another person, help from an assistive device or the services of an assistance animal, or requires a qualifying modification to their principal residence or land.

A relative is a child, grandchild, brother, sister, parent, stepparent or grandparent of the person with a disability, or a person who stands in place of a parent to the person with a disability.

Qualifying modifications are changes to the principal residence or land that are necessary for the person with disabilities to gain access to, be mobile or functional in, or reduce the risk of harm in the principal residence or on the land.

A daily living activity includes these activities in their principal residence: preparing meals, managing finances, performing housework, moving about inside, performing personal hygiene and self care, managing medication, making decisions about activities, care or finances, and relating to, communicating or interacting with others effectively.
